Dear Shareholder:

In tumultuous times, we think transparency is the antidote to uncertainty. We believe that a key method of providing transparency to shareholders of the Credit Suisse Institutional Money Market Fund, Inc. – Prime Portfolio (“Prime Money Market Fund”) is to provide the most current information possible about its portfolio holdings. Consequently, we are pleased to offer the attached portfolio holdings report to shareholders of our Prime Money Market Fund. As always, our portfolio management and credit research teams here at Credit Suisse are monitoring developments closely.

On Monday, September 15 the Prime Money Market Fund wrapped up business at 5pm New York time as per its usual operating procedures, with over $10 billion in assets under management – as shown in the attached report. We at Credit Suisse understand the role that we play as a manager of excess working capital for our corporate and institutional clients; we will operate with consistent procedures for shareholder convenience.

Our Prime Money Market Fund maintains a $1 NAV per share, in line with the objective stated in the investment prospectuses. Credit Suisse plans to continue to manage the Prime Money Market Fund conservatively, with high levels of liquidity and transparency for our shareholders.

You may note in the attached report:

- The Prime Money Market Fund holds no AIG, Lehman, Merrill Lynch, or Washington Mutual positions;
- Among Broker Dealer Credits, the Prime Money Market Fund has current exposure only to Goldman Sachs Group;
- Over 20% of the Prime Money Market Fund’s assets are held in overnight liquidity positions; and,
- The Prime Money Market Fund does not hold any asset backed commercial paper.

We appreciate that you may want updates regularly, so we plan to continue to post our Prime Money Market Fund's portfolio as usual: twice monthly on our website at the following address:

We are accessible to you; should you have any questions or concerns, please contact John Ricketts directly on 212-325-7363.

We appreciate the trust you place in our Prime Money Market Fund. Credit Suisse is closely monitoring the financial market environment as it relates to the Prime Money Market Fund and will apprise you of any material developments with the Prime Money Market Fund.

Sincerely,

Mike Walsh
Director,
Portfolio Manager
